Sexual and Reproductive Health Care Services

Davao Oriental State University (DOrSU) promotes sexual and reproductive health through campus-based health education, HIV awareness campaigns, and accessible screening and counseling services. Through its Office of Health Services (OHS) and Office of Student Counseling and Development (OSCD), the University conducts initiatives that educate students on HIV/AIDS prevention, sexually transmitted infections (STIs), responsible health practices, and the importance of early detection. These efforts include free and confidential HIV screening and counseling, information on preventive measures, and collaboration with local health authorities to improve access to sexual health services. Through these initiatives, DOrSU strengthens health awareness, encourages informed decision-making, and supports the well-being of its university community.

DOrSU Raises Awareness on Illegal Drug Prevention and HIV/AIDS Through Free Webinar

Davao Oriental State University (DOrSU), through its Office of Student Counseling and Development (OSCD), conducted a free webinar titled "Anti-Illegal Drugs & HIV/AIDS Prevention 2025" on November 7, 2025, in celebration of Drug Prevention Month. The online activity was conducted via Zoom and Facebook Live to raise awareness about illegal drug prevention and HIV/AIDS education.

The initiative aimed to equip participants with relevant knowledge and encourage informed decisions, responsible behavior, and preventive practices. Through accessible health education and awareness activities, DOrSU promotes a healthier, safer, and more informed university and wider community.

DOrSU Holds HIV/AIDS Symposium, Calls Students to Action on HIV Testing

Davao Oriental State University (DOrSU), through its Office of Health Services (OHS), conducted a two-day HIV/AIDS awareness symposium on February 12–13, themed "Spread Love, Not HIV: Get Tested and Know Your Status This Month of Love." The activity aimed to raise awareness, address misconceptions, and reduce stigma surrounding HIV and AIDS among students.

In partnership with the Mati City Health Office, the symposium provided information on sexually transmitted infections (STIs), HIV transmission, and prevention strategies. Students were also informed about the availability of free HIV testing every Wednesday at the DOrSU clinic, along with access to condoms and other contraceptives.

Through campus-based health education, access to testing, and preventive services, DOrSU promotes informed health decisions and contributes to HIV prevention and improved sexual health awareness among its students.
