4.3.3 Executive Education and Vocational Training for the Wider Community

Davao Oriental State University (DOrSU) provides accessible learning and skills development opportunities to the wider community through short-term training programs, executive education, and vocational courses open to non-enrolled participants. These initiatives enhance professional competencies, promote lifelong learning, and equip individuals with practical knowledge and skills that support employment, entrepreneurship, and community development.

DOrSU voters' education reaches parish youths

Davao Oriental State University (DOrSU), through its Voices for Transformation and Emancipation (VoTE) Program, conducted a Citizen Voters' Education activity on May 1, 2025, in San Isidro, Davao Oriental, reaching over 50 parish youth. The initiative promoted electoral literacy, responsible citizenship, and informed participation through discussions on voter rights, vote-buying, disinformation, the electoral system, and grassroots governance, empowering young people to become advocates of responsible civic engagement in their communities.

SUMMARY OF EVALUATION

The bar graph presents the evaluation results for Project T.U.D.L.O Activity 3: Empowering Daycare Teachers: Strengthening Literacy and Numeracy Foundations in Early Childhood, focusing on three key areas: Timeliness, Relevance, and Quality, and four indicators under each. Each indicator was rated based on five categories, and ratings were given using the following: Very Satisfactory, Satisfactory, and Good.

Under the Timeliness criterion, the participants gave a strong approval rating, with an average of 70.90%. This shows that the training sessions were well-organized, conducted as scheduled, and efficiently managed from start to finish. A small percentage rated the program as Very Satisfactory and Satisfactory, and no participant rated it Poor or Needs Improvement. These results indicate that the conduct and pacing of the training were highly appreciated by the attendees.

For Relevance, the results were even more remarkable, earning an average rating of 82.46%, sharing the same rating for the criterion Quality. The participants found the topics, discussions, and activities highly meaningful and applicable to their professional practice as child development teachers. These findings confirm that the training content was closely aligned with the participants' needs, addressing essential areas in early childhood education and child development. This also shows that they were satisfied with the delivery of the sessions, the expertise of the speakers, and the quality of materials provided.

Overall, the training achieved an average of 80.15% Outstanding across all criteria, signifying that it was highly successful and met its objectives effectively. The participants viewed the program as timely, relevant, and of excellent quality, reflecting their satisfaction and appreciation for the learning experience. The consistently high ratings across the three evaluation areas confirm that the training provided valuable insights and practical knowledge that support the professional growth of child development teachers.

In conclusion, the seminar-workshop was well-received and effectively implemented. It demonstrated excellence in its organization, content relevance, and delivery. Although minor improvements can be made to ensure timeliness, regardless the overall results affirm that the program was impactful and meaningful in enhancing the competencies of educators in the field of early childhood education and child development.

II. PROGRAM/PROJECT SUMMARY

Scanned with CamScanner

(12) Introduction/Rationale/significance (not to exceed one page):

Education is fundamental to the holistic development of children, especially during their formative years. In the Child Development Centers (CDCs) of the City of Mati, teachers play a crucial role in nurturing the cognitive, social, and emotional growth of young learners. However, a comprehensive needs assessment conducted among CDC teachers and stakeholders revealed critical professional development gaps, particularly in curriculum implementation, child psychology, classroom management, and community engagement. The assessment highlighted a strong demand for capability training, seminars, and workshops to address these challenges and enhance teaching effectiveness.

In response to these findings, the TUDLO program—Teaching Upgrades and Development for Learning Optimization was developed to equip CDC educators with the necessary skills and strategies to optimize learning outcomes. The assessment results underscored the need for updated teaching methodologies, improved support for diverse learners, and stronger integration of educational technology to keep pace with the evolving demands of early childhood education. Additionally, many teachers expressed a need for greater collaboration with families and communities to create a more supportive learning environment.

Structured to directly address these identified needs, TUDLO empowers CDC teachers through targeted training in curriculum development, child psychology, classroom management, and community partnerships. By adopting a holistic approach, the program ensures that educators are not only adept at delivering lessons but also well-equipped to support the emotional and developmental needs of children. Furthermore, it fosters strong partnerships with parents and integrates modern educational technology to enhance teaching effectiveness.

Through TUDLO, we aim to bridge the gaps identified in the needs assessment, elevating the overall quality of early childhood education in the City of Mati.
